CBI takes to the water

We are pleased to announce our membership of the American Boat & Yacht Council (ABYC).

This august body has been in operation for over 50 years as a non-profit organisation responsible for developing, writing and updating the safety standards for boat building and repair in the USA. Its consensus-based standards are a viable alternative to mandatory government regulation, an example of industry self-regulation well worth emulating.

- Industry uses ABYC standards in all phases of development, production, and maintenance of boats and their accessories.
- ABYC Standards and Technical Information Reports are the basis for certification programmes, marine surveys and inspections.
- ABYC standards enable marine industry professionals to support decisions on design, construction, and installation of equipment.
- ABYC standards increase consumer confidence in product safety.

CBI products comply with all major international standards and the company is well known around the world for its expertise in circuit breaker technology. It now joins over 400 members of the ABYC who contribute to the maintenance of marine standards of the highest international quality.
